

Call for Papers and Sessions

Asian Network for GIS-based Historical Studies (ANGIS) Tokyo 2021

Asian Network for GIS-based Historical Studies (ANGIS) opens its call for submissions of papers and sessions for the 9th annual conference, ANGIS Tokyo 2021 to be held on December 4-5, 2021 both on site and on remote.

Date of the Conference: 4th (Sat.) and 5th (Sun.) December, 2021

Conference style: Virtual conference via Zoom

Language: English

Abstract submission site: <https://www.angis-2021.jp/submission.html>

Due date for abstract submission: September 30th (Thr.) , 2021

(Late submission after Oct 1st is also acceptable by sending email to :angistokyo@gmail.com)

Registration fee: Free of charge

About ANGIS

ANGIS (<http://angis-japan.org/>) is a network for all academics interested in GIS-based historical studies on Asia. Since its foundation in 2012, it has held an annual conference and has published an academic journal, JANGIS (ISBN: 2434 7094).

About ANGIS Tokyo 2021

As for the theme of ANGIS 2021 in Tokyo, we invite you to discuss the “Waters” in Asia. Many of the areas in the region have a topography defined by water systems including seas, rivers, lakes, and marshes. Even the deserts in the dry zone, residents’ accesses to water critically discern their livelihoods. In visualizing and analyzing patterns of movement and transformation in the past, we share the question, how rains, rivers, coasts, and seas have shaped history in Asia.

Other than any topics related to this broad theme, we also welcome submissions on the historical studies of all places and periods in Asia employing GIS technology and, on the theory and the methods of spatial analysis.

Open to the scholars of history, spatial science, geography, and other varied fields of humanities and social sciences, ANGIS Tokyo 2021 aims to provide the ideal platform to present their latest findings and to explore new research agendas.

Local Organizing Committee

Sayako KANDA, Department of Economics, Keio University

Akiyuki KAWASAKI, Institute of Future Initiatives, The University of Tokyo

Michihiro OGAWA, Institute for Advanced Studies on Asia, The University of Tokyo

Tomoko SHIROYAMA, Graduate School of Economics, The University of Tokyo